BRITISH SEA LORD EAGER FOR U.S. BID TO CUT NAVY

'Would Drop Everything' To Help Toward Pact, He Says

FEARS EXPANSION

Wants 'Hand Across Sea' Talk To Give Way To Real Action

(Reuter's Service)

London, March 17.—A striking announcement on the naval armaments question was made by Lord Lee, the First Lord of the Admiralty, yesterday at a dinner at the Institute of Naval Architects when he said that if the invitation came from America he would be prepared to put aside all other business in order to help towards an agreement for mutual reduction of naval armaments which he considered the most pressing matter in the world's affairs.

Lord Lee declared that the difference between the British and American formulae regarding the strength of their respective navies was too slight to be made the subject of controversy, and asserted that if ever war broke out between Great Britain and any of her former allies, it would be the fault of blind or criminal leading, for which statesmen, whether in London, Washington, Tokio or any other capital, would be execrated in history if they failed to avert such a tragedy.

Lord Lee said that the new British navy estimates set an example in the reduction of armaments. We had taken risks in regard to the relative position of our navy towards others and we were prepared to go as far as possible in that direction, but it was not sufficient merely to talk of hands across the sea. We must also have heads across the sea. Lord Lee said that from his long knowledge of America he profoundly believed in business talking leading up to a square deal. We were, he said, not engaged in a poker "bluff" but in a game where the cards were placed on the table.

FAR EAST FLEET QUESTION TO BE PARLEY SUBJECT

Issue To Be Threshed Out At Imperial Conference In June

London, March 16.—In the House of Commons today, Commander Bellairs asked whether any representations had been officially sent in from the Dominions regarding the report that Admiral Lord Jellicoe proposed the construction of a Far Eastern fleet of the latest type, including eight battleships and eight battle-cruisers, by 1924.

Mr. Lloyd George replied that a few representations had been received, but that the Dominions were deferring considered views until the whole question of the Empire's naval policy and co-operation could be discussed at the forthcoming conference to be held in June next.

London, March 16.—Sir Eustace d'Eyncourt, in a speech at the Institute of Naval Architects, furnished a new light on the problem of the future utility of battleships. Sir Eustace co-operated in the designing of a number of warships which took part in the battle of Jutland and he pointed out that, with the exception of the Lutzow, which was first disabled by gunfire, no capital ship on either side, dated later than the dreadnought, was sunk during the war by a torpedo. He emphasised that this fact should be remembered by those who urged the vulnerability of the battleship to torpedoes.

Furthermore, Sir Eustace pointed out that the Germans during the war completed the construction of 380 submarines, of which 200 were destroyed, while during the last ten months the destruction of submarines had practically caught up with the construction—a fact needing consideration by advocates of submarines to replace warships.

SHANGHAI SOON TO SEE ITSELF IN THE MOVIES

Familiar Scenes And Faces In "The Dragon's Net" —Opens At Isis

Shanghai is about to enjoy the novel experience of seeing itself in moving pictures and this is not to be brought about in any usual commonplace manner, but it will be through the medium of a modern moving picture story of the first order, a melodrama replete with thrills, acted by world-known screen artists and produced by the biggest film company in the world, the Universal Film Company of New York.

Within recent weeks the Universal film people have established their own branch establishment here under the management of Mr. Norman Westwood and a purpose announced is to provide Shanghai and other centers in China with premier productions that have not been shown elsewhere.

"The Dragon's Net" is the title of the picture to which Shanghai gives background in many scenes. It is a mysterious story laid in the Far East and to achieve the real atmosphere for the unfolding of the plot the Universal Company a year ago sent a whole company headed by Miss Marie Malcamp to the Far East.

At a private showing at the Isis theater yesterday four of the twelve episodes of the story, particularly those laid in Shanghai, were screened for a gathering of guests at the Isis theater. The picture, by the way, will have its first public showing at the Isis, opening next Monday.

Familiar scenes and familiar faces fill the many developments of the story that were pictured here. The pictures at the Shanghai Race Course taken while last year's spring meeting was in progress are especially excellent and one of these shows Mr. William Hill, the well-known rider to the life. Fokien Road with its railless tram is seen several times and in a number of scenes, interiors and exteriors, are splendid pictures of the residence of Mr. Edward Ezra and in these Mrs. W. J. Gande is to be seen playing a part.

Besides these, are scenes showing the Astor House, the Garden Bridge, the Bund, many scenes taken in familiar places on the Whangpoo, the Rock Garden in the Native City, and the West Gate, besides the walled city at Paoshan and scenes in Woosung. Central garage chauffeurs proved good actors as did also the boy, coolie and amah at the Ezra home and the Chinese police. Altogether the production is one full of interest for Shanghai people who will overlook such slight errors as the spelling of Woosung as Woosang and the application of the word mafoo when chauffeur is meant. Other scenes in the picture, which is a serial, were photographed in Manila and the Philippines.

TOMORROW IS TAG DAY FOR FAMINE FUND

Students And Boy Scouts Will Canvass City

NEW SURTAX RAP

Request Is Made For Nation - Wide Opposition

Trudge Fifty Miles In Quest For Food, Are Told To Wait

Here is a tragic picture of the submissive acceptance of their lot by the famine victims in the North. It is sketched in a telegram received yesterday by the chairman of the Chinese-Foreign Relief Committee from Mr. Wilder at Hantan Hsien, to the following effect:

"Yesterday fifty women from one village faced a cold dust storm for seven miles, carrying bags and hoping to get a month's ration tickets and grain at the Hantan grain dump. They were told that they must wait for investigators to reach their homes. Without complaining or begging they trudged home emptyhanded to wait with their children in their empty houses. Shall they wait in vain?"

If you are a citizen of Shanghai you may expect to be approached tomorrow by a member of the Students Union with a tag for sale to help the Famine Drive. The Municipal Council has approved it and all arrangements have been completed to divide the city into sections and thoroughly cover all of its avenues and shops for the spare change in the possession of each and every person.

In order that there may not be any advantage taken of the opportunity for unscrupulous persons to collect on their own accounts, a distinctive arm-band has been devised for every student and he will be equipped with a bamboo bank for the collection of the money. The banks are made from a single section of bamboo, closed at both top and bottom and provided with a small slot at the top for the insertion of coins and notes.

In addition to this the Boy Scouts have volunteered for the same work, but they have scorned the use of bamboo banks as being too small to contain all the money which they believe they can collect. Accordingly they have secured empty oil-tins with a small opening at the top for depositing coins.

The bamboo tube and the empty oil tins with a white arm-band lettered in blue will be the pass words for the students and any one found collecting without these identification marks will soon find himself in difficulties with the police.

WIDE OPPOSITION TO TAX

Nation-wide opposition to the new famine tax which has been authorised by the Peking government is urged in a letter to the National Federation of Chambers of Commerce, according to the Tientsin Social Welfare of recent date.

The Chinese National Federation of the Chambers of Commerce has received an official communication from the Association of Chambers of Commerce of Kirin suggesting that all the new taxes and surcharges proposed by the government be vigorously opposed by all the Chambers of Commerce in the country. Part of the letter reads as follows:

"Although repeated protests have been made by the business population of the country against the three new taxes and surcharges, viz., income tax, the 10 percent famine tax, and the additional stamp duty, recent orders from the Ministry show that the income tax will sooner or later come into effect while the additional stamp duty will be postponed. As for the famine tax it will go into effect on the 15th of March. You will notice that the enforcement of all three is certain.

ANGLO-SOVIET TRADE AGREEMENT SIGNED; EMBARGOES REMOVED

Two Nations To Abstain From Interfering With Each Other In A Military Or Political Way. Old Russian Debt Apparently Wiped Out.

(Reuter's Service)

London, March 16.—Replying to Commander Kenworthy in the House of Commons, Mr. Lloyd George stated that the Anglo-Russian trade agreement was signed this morning by Sir Robert Horne and M. Krassin on behalf of the British and Soviet Governments respectively. The text of the agreement will be published as soon as possible. All special restrictions on import and trade between the two countries, as far as the British Government is responsible for them, have been removed.

London, March 16.—The text of the Anglo-Russian trade agreement is now published. It says that, pending the conclusion of a formal peace treaty and the regulation of economic and political relations, a preliminary agreement has been reached, by which each party undertakes to refrain from hostile action and propaganda.

More particularly, the Soviet Government undertakes to make no attempt to encourage the peoples of Asia, especially those of India and Afghanistan, against the British; while Great Britain gives a similar undertaking in respect of the independent countries which were formerly part of the Russian Empire. All British subjects in Russia and all Russians in the British Empire will immediately be permitted to return to their homes.

Both parties agree not to impose or maintain any form of blockade, and to remove the existing obstacles to the resumption of trade relations, including the impediments in regard to banking, credit and financial operations.

SHIP PREVILEGES

British and Russian ships will be accorded the customary privileges and immunities in the ports of the respective countries. Great Britain undertakes not to participate in any measures restricting freedom of navigation of Russian ships, and the Soviet Government undertakes to clear of mines the passages to Russian ports. Either party may appoint official agents to the territories of the other, and these agents will enjoy the customary immunities, but either party may refuse to admit, or may require the withdrawal of, such agents on the ground of public interest or security.

The British Government will not initiate steps with a view to seizing the gold, funds, securities or other commodities which may be exported from Russia in payment for imports, or any property which the Soviet Government may acquire in the United Kingdom. The Soviet Government undertakes to make no claim to dispose of the funds or other property of the late Imperial and Provisional Russian Governments in the United Kingdom. The British Government makes a corresponding undertaking in regard to British Government funds and property in Russia.

TO GO PER 6 MONTHS

The agreement is terminable by six months' notice, after the expiration of twelve months, provided it has not previously been replaced by a formal treaty, and provided also that, in the event of British courts giving judgment for the attachment of any Soviet payments on the ground of obligations incurred by the Soviet or Pre-Soviet Government, the Soviet Government shall in that [illegible] entitled to terminate the agreement forthwith.

London, March 17.—The signature of the Anglo-Russian trade agreement has speedily been followed by a wireless message from Moscow, announcing that a contract for a big order for coal has been signed in London, the amount purchased being 300,000 tons.

London, March 17.—Following the signature of the trade agreement with Russia, the President of the Board of Trade, Sir Robert Horne, addressed a letter to Krassin giving details of the Bolshevist activity against India and stating that this must be ended immediately if the trade agreement is to be observed in good faith.

CHINA, TO FOLLOW SUIT

The signing of the trade agreement between England and Russia means that many contracts now pending in Peking with British capitalists are to be signed shortly, according to Mr. B. Torgasheff commercial attache of the Far Eastern Republic Peking Mission, who is at present in Shanghai.

$30,000 Reward Is Offered For Arrest Of Wang's Slayer

Family Of Former Kweichow Military Chief Issues Offer; Inquest Supports Political Theory

A reward of $30,000 has been offered by the family of General Wang Men-hua for the arrest of the assassin who shot the former Kweichow military chieftain to death at the entrance to the Yih Ping Shang Hotel in Thibet Road Wednesday evening.

No tangible trace of the mysterious "medicine dealer" believed to have fired the shots which killed the general and wounded a passing pedestrian was picked up yesterday and it is believed that, his political errand accomplished he has made good his escape. All the evidence points to the theory that he worked entirely on his own in the assassination and thus has no confederates to betray him for the sake of the reward.

An inquest over the body of the slain ex-official was held yesterday before Assessor Jacobs and Magistrate Tsang and a verdict was returned to the effect that the deceased met his death as a result of revolver wounds inflicted by a person unknown, but probably the occupant of room No. 37 at the Yih Piny Shang Hotel.

INQUEST IS HELD

Evidence was given at the inquest by the friend whom Wang had been visiting at the hotel, by the victim's chauffeur, one of the hotel managers, the room boy, the hotel watchman and the police.

It was stated by Sung Sze-sing, the friend on whom the General had been calling, that he is representative here of the Kweichow authorities and that Wang had been in the habit of calling upon him frequently—almost daily. He identified the body and said that Wang had previously been commander-in-chief of the Kweichow forces and had for some time lived at 91 Carter Road. After Sung learned of the shooting Wednesday evening he went outside the hotel, where he met Wang's brother, Wang Po-chun, a member of the Southern peace delegation, and together they went to the Shanhung Road Hospital, to which the wounded man had been removed. They attempted to speak to the victim, but he was in a

Woman "Sourdough" Out Of Alaska After 48 Years

A flip of a coin in 1873 decided whether Miss Nellie Cashman, of San Francisco, and another girl would seek their fortunes in South America or in Alaska. The coin sent them to Alaska and it was not until a few days ago that Miss Cashman, now sixty years old, returned to her native city on a vacation from the frozen north. She is widely known as Alaska's most distinguished "sourdough."

U.S. TO PLACE GREAT FLEET IN PACIFIC TO MAINTAIN "OPEN DOOR"

London Times Correspondent Says This Plan Is Being Considered "As Deliberate, Enduring Policy," Despite Denials

TO SUPPORT CHINA AGAINST JAPAN

"America Sure To Give Vigorous Backing To Peking's Forthcoming Insistence Upon Cancellation Of 21 Demands," Says Journalist

(Reuter's Service)

London, March 16.—Despite an official denial, the Times correspondent at Washington maintains that the United States Cabinet is considering the question of concentrating the full American naval strength in the Pacific. He says that signs seem to point to the ultimate adoption of this plan, not as an emergency measure, but as the first move in a deliberate enduring policy. The United States is preparing to turn its face towards Latin America and the Far East. This would end the nebulous policy of the Lansing-Ishii pact.

The present feeling in official circles seems to be that the acceptance of the principle that Japan has special interests in Asia has resulted only in encouraging Japanese Imperialism, and the weakening of Chinese sovereignty. The return to and the reinforcement of the traditional American policy of the open door in China is now intended. There is reason to believe that China will soon ask Japan to cancel the treaties growing out of the notorious Twenty-One Demands, and America is sure vigorously to support this request. This would be the test of the power and sincerity of the Liberal Party in Japan, and would, if China's demand were granted, pave the way for a settlement of the Shantung question in which America would also support China.

FRENCH REGRET TEEY DIDN'T TWIST KNIFE IN TEUTONS

"Insufficiency Of Defeat" Cause For Cockiness, Says Briand

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, March 16.—Replying to the debate in the Chamber on the London Conference, M. Briand, in a warmly applauded speech, reaffirmed that the penalties would remain in operation until Germany had given satisfaction in regard to reparations, disarmament and war criminals.

The deputies stood up and cheered when the Premier declared that the insufficiency of Germany's defeat had been a great misfortune psychologically for the German people, whose leaders failed to understand the generosity of France in stopping her armies on the eve of the complete collapse of the German army.

Paris, March 16.—A fifty percent Reparations Recovery Bill has been introduced in the Chamber.

Berlin, March 16.—It is semi-officially denied that production on Government account has been reduced in the Stinnes and Thyssen works in the newly occupied districts, and it is added that no workmen have been dismissed there.

(Note.—A previous message from Paris stated that the manufacturers of Duisburg, Duesseldorf and Ruhrort, inspired by the Stinnes group, had decided to declare a lockout as a protest against the extended Allied occupation.)

London, March 16.—Article 235 of the Peace Treaty which stipulates that Germany shall pay the Reparations Commission twenty thousand million gold marks before May, 1921, to cover the cost of the armies of occupation, any balance devoted to the liquidation of the indemnity, has given rise to an exchange of notes lasting since March, 1920. The Reparation Commission's last note pointed out to Germany that she had only paid eight thousand million marks. To this Germany tersely replied that she had fulfilled her engagements under Article 235.

The Reparations Commission has now despatched a peremptory note, demanding the payment of the remaining twelve thousand millions before May 1, the first instalment of 1,000,000,000 marks being made before March 23.

London, March 16.—During the committee stage of the Reparations Recovery Bill in the House of Commons today, the Independent Liberals moved an amendment providing that no payment should be made under the Bill until France, Italy and Belgium had adopted similar measures. They contended that otherwise the Bill would be useless as a measure of compulsion.

The amendment was subsequently rejected by 218 votes to 70.

EX-PEKING MAN IS NAMED FIRST AIDE TO HUGHES

Fred Morris Deering, Former Legation Secretary, Appointed

A cablegram was received from Washington last night by Mr. M. F. Perkins, acting U.S. Consul General, stating that Fred Morris Deering had been appointed first assistant Secretary of State, and that Robert Wood Bliss had been named as third assistant secretary.

Mr. Perkins said that Mr. Deering served in Peking some twelve or thirteen years ago as Secretary to the American legation, and that both he and Mr. Bliss had had long careers in the American diplomatic service. Bliss is a St. Louis man and Mr. Perkins thinks Deering probably is connected with the Chicago family of that name.

Who's Who says of Mr. Bliss that he was born in St. Louis in 1875, and that following his graduation from Harvard he entered the consular service, first in Porto Rico, later being appointed consul at Venice. He subsequently was stationed at Petrograd, Brussels and Paris, where he was successively secretary at the Embassy and counselor.

Deering's name is not included in the Who's Who.

John J. Mayhew Wainwright, a New York lawyer, is understood to have been selected as Assistant Secretary of War.

Eugene Meyer Jun., of New York, Managing Director of the War Finance Corporation under President Wilson, has been nominated by President Harding to continue as Director of the Corporation for a term of four years.

Elliot Wardsworth, of Boston, has been nominated as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, in charge of Foreign Loans.

AERO SOCIETY OF SHANGHAI HOLDS INITIAL MEETING

Constitution Adopted And Executive Committee Chosen

The Aeronautical Society of Shanghai, which was inaugurated 3 weeks ago, held its first Annual General Meeting in the Royal Asiatic Society's hall last evening. There was a large and representative gathering, not the least interested of whom were several Chinese ladies.

Doctor H. Chatley, D.Sc, presided over the meeting and explained the objects of the Society and read the proposed Constitution as drawn up by the temporary Committee. He also read letters from Sir Arthur Whitten Brown and Mr. Jabin Hsu, Commissioner for Shanghai of the Aeronautical Department of the Chinese Republic, stating their sympathy with the Society and regretting their inability to be present.

The adoption of the Constitution was seconded by Captain Morley Peel, who supported Doctor Chatley and laid emphasis on the necessity of becoming affiliated with the Federation Aeronautique Internationale.

This Federation was the outcome of the Air Convention and all the Great Powers had subscribed to it. The Aero Club of each Country was the representative of the Federation for that Country and had control of aviation there. Naturally this control would only be given to a body with a technical executive committee, and while the Aeronautical Society had no idea of competing with, or running antagonistically to the Aero Club of Shanghai, it was felt that they could put forward a more technical personnel and it was hoped that the Aero Club and the Society would be able to merge their interests. At present, not only are their relations extremely cordial, but several prominent men were closely connected with both bodies, amongst whom Doctor Chatley had made a close study of the science of aviation since 1908 and had contributed notably to Aeronautical literature. Doctor Chatley is also an Associated Fellow of the Royal Aeronautical Society.

Application has already been made for affiliation to the International Federation and Sir A. Whitten Brown, who left on the 10th is, on his arrival, proceeding to carry this through.

The Constitution, as proposed by Doctor Chatley, was unanimously accepted and the election of the Executive Committee was proceeded with. The following gentlemen were elected for the ensuing year. It will be noticed that, besides all being either aviators or engineers, the Committee includes representatives of American, British, Chinese Danish and French nationality:

Dr. H. Chatley D. Sc., Mr. P. Crovat U.S.A.S.; Mr. A. Corrit B. Sc. C.E.; Mr. G. F. Hankinson R.F.C.; Mr. W. E. Holland R.F.C.; Mr. J. Schlisler French Air Service; Mr. R. N. Swann R.F.C.; Mr. Kyat Tong; Mr. R. Wallace R.F.C.

In conclusion the Chairman pointed out that applications for membership are invited from anyone interested. All communications should be made to the Hon. Sec. Mr. J. H. Underwood, at 3 Ezra Road. The activities in hand at present included an exhibition of aerial photographs taken in the war, to be held shortly.

Mixed Court Jottings

Valentine Leonardo, a Russian arrested some time ago for begging and being without visible means of support, arises to give debate to the time-frazzled adage regarding the selective rights of mendicants. He reappeared in the Mixed Court yesterday on the charge of failing to obey that tribunal's order for him to leave town. Sub-Inspector Wilson told the court that he understood passage to Harbin had been arranged for the accused, but that he refuses to leave unless a first class berth was provided for him. The matter was held over for decision by Assessor Ivanoff today.

A mission student was sentenced to six months' imprisonment yesterday for falsely representing himself to be the agent for a book called "Health," on orders for which he collected $117.50. Receipt books showed that he had visited 85 different places, offering the book at a price $1 lower than its market figure. No books were delivered. Mr. J. G. Gjording appeared as complainant.

Two fruit sellers who, in retaliation for the ejection of one of them from the Sincere Roof Garden cinema, assaulted one of the store's inspectors, were given two weeks each yesterday.

The proprietor of an opium den at 29 Avenue Road was sent to jail for one month by the Court yesterday.

There were twenty-one cases heard in the Traffic Court yesterday, a chauffeur in one instance being sentenced to two weeks' imprisonment for reckless driving and injury of a pedestrian on Szechuen Road. Fines ranged from $3 to $15.

Six months' imprisonment and expulsion from the Settlement was the penalty imposed yesterday upon the operator of a gambling establishment at 238 Tiendong Road. The tenant who sub-let part of his premises to the first accused was fined $10 and of sixteen men seized in the raid twelve forfeited their bail—$12 each—and four paid fines of $3.

dying condition and unable to talk. Sung declared his belief that the murder was in connection with political affairs.

Wang's chauffeur testified that he had been sent to the hotel by his mistress to fetch his master. He informed the latter of his arrival and had waited about ten minutes when he saw Wang coming out of the entrance to the older part of the hotel. He opened the car door and climbed into the driver's seat. He then heard what he thought to be the explosion of a motor tire and looking around saw a man firing a revolver from a window of one of the ground floor rooms of the hotel.

TRIES TO ESCAPE

The door of the car had been shut before the shots were fired. He saw his master get out of the car and go to the center of Thibet Road. The wounded man then tried to get back to the car and as witness dismounted he grabbed at his long gown and fell. The chauffeur stated that he tried to run into the hotel after the murder but Wang held tightly to his skirts and so he shouted to the watchman, who then blew his whistle.

The watchman gave similar evidence, except that he said he could not tell from whence the shots came.

An employe of the hotel testified that a man named Hoo Yung-an, or Woo Ying-eur, rented room 37 for eight days, which were up yesterday. On the evening in question the guest walked about outside his room for a time and went inside and locked the door at about 6 o'clock. About 20 minutes later, while the witness was sitting in the hallway, he heard a noise like an exploding tire and shortly afterward the guest rushed out and disappeared down the corridor. The man, he said, was about 30 years old and spoke the Szechuen dialect. Hoo was seen later by a bar boy walking toward one of the entrances in the newer part of the hotel.

Detective Inspector Eek testified that five empty .32 calibre cartridges had been found on a table beneath the window of room 37 and described the three wounds which the bullets inflicted on their victim. When the first shot was fired, he said, the general was evidently attempting to get out of the car by the door nearest the race course, which accounted for the bullet wound in the back.

ASSASSIN PLANNED WELL

It was learned by the police yesterday that the mysterious Hoo, or Woo, at first attempted to engage a room directly opposite that of Wang's friend Sung and, failing that, he engaged the one from which the shots were fired. He had evidently studied the matter carefully and knew that he would be in position there to accomplish his purpose. The slain general was not more than ten paces from the window of room 37 when the assassination occurred.

Facts developed yesterday gave greater strength to the theory of political instigation for the slaying. Wang was a nephew of Tuchun Liu Shien-shih of Kweichow, and, according to Chinese reports, was planning to depose his kinsman. Wang and General Li Lieh-chun, commander of the Yunnan forces in Kwangsi, were thrown out of power at the same time and departed for Szechuen. They remained there some time and then Wang came from Chungking to Shanghai. Li remained in the West. It is believed that Wang was followed here by his assassin.

merchants in the North and business will be started as soon as formalities are complied with by the two governments," Mr. Torgasheff said yesterday.

The commercial attache expressed the opinion that the Russian-British trade agreement would be followed by a similar agreement between China and Russia.

London, March 16.—The Russian Trade delegation has issued a statement contradicting the reports that the Kronstadt revolutionaries had been shelling Petrograd, and declaring that the Soviet Government throughout had treated the revolution as a painful misunderstanding and accordingly tried to secure a settlement by peaceful means. The statement says that the guns of Krasnaya Gorka could have wiped out Kronstadt in twenty-four hours and that the rebellious sailors are already regretting the action, and it is anticipated that the trouble will be overcome shortly.

Customs Collector Of San Francisco Is Visitor Here

Mr. J. O. Davis, customs collector of the port of San Francisco, was here while the China Mail steamer Nanking, upon which he is making a trip to Manila and back, was in port. Mr. Davis is accompanied by Mrs. Davis and their son and daughter. They will make the round trip on the Nanking, as Mr. Davis, who is on leave of absence from his duties, must be back in California by May 1. He is on a personal tour and not an official trip.

Mr. Davis has been collector of customs at San Francisco during the last eight years, but expects to retire in September, as he is a political appointee. He has been prominent in Democratic politics in California for quite a number of years, having been the Democratic candidate for United States Senator in 1908 and chairman of the state Democratic central committee in 1912. Commenting on the change of administration, the Democratic political said that it looked as if the country were in for a "stand pat reactionary government" for the next four years. He especially criticized President Harding's appointment of Senator Fall as Secretary of the Interior, describing the Senator as a "reactionary of the first order and a leader of the movement to annex Mexico." He expressed the opinion that the California question would be amicably settled.

SHIPS AT ANCHOR IN COLLISION IS CHARGE IN COURT

Authorities Asked To Say How Vessels Could Have Bumped Each Other

How can two ships at anchor collide?

This is the simple little query that has been placed before the British Supreme Court today.

The Chung Lee, owned by the Chang Pen Chang, was rammed by the Nancy Moeller, it is charged, and damages of Yen 19,900 are asked. The collision is admitted by both parties to the suit as having taken place on the night of March 16, 1920, off the Taku Bar, near Tientsin.

Both skippers claim that their vessels were lying at anchor off the bar, some 500 yards apart. Each claims that the other's ship displayed navigating lights as well as anchor lights. Each denies that he displayed anything other than anchor lights. Each charges that the other was guilty of careless navigation.

Far East marine history may be made when the decision is handed down. The case will be continued today.

Lunts Honored When They Leave To Visit Old Home In States

Marine Superintendent Of China Merchants May Remain In America

Captain W. H. Lunt and Mrs. Lunt are to depart today for the United States for a vacation and it is expected that they will remain there to make their home after a long residence in Shanghai. Captain Lunt, who has been honored with high decorations of the Chinese government, has been marine superintendent for the China Merchants Steam Navigation Company.

In 1872 Captain Lunt came to China on his uncle's tea clipper, the Kashmir. He joined the firm of Russel & Company here and remained with it until 1877 when he joined the China Merchants. He was promoted to master in 1881 and remained at sea until 1911 when he was promoted to the position of marine superintendent.

Members of the Social Department of the American Woman's Club presented Mrs. W. H. Lunt, former chairman of the group, with a beautiful silver mesh bag yesterday morning. Mrs. Lunt will accompany her husband to the United States. She has been very active in Woman's Club activities and was a former president of the organisation.

Former Shanghai School Boy Shot While Visiting U.S.

(Staff Correspondence)

Sung Kiang, Ku., March 16.—News has just reached us from Rev. W. B. Burke, missionary at Sung Kiang, who is now home on furlough, that his son, John, met with a serious accident. He and a companion were hunting and his companion accidently shot him in the leg.

Owing to the long exposure before he could reach a doctor he was in a very serious condition. After six weeks of severe suffering, he is still not out of danger. Transfusion of blood was the only thing that saved his life.

John formerly was a student at the American School in Shanghai.

The higher primary schools of Sung Kiang and vicinity have closed down for a season as a protest against the shortage of funds which they are receiving. It is claimed that some of the money which should be given to them is being distributed among some outside schools.

Tag Day For Famine Fund Is Tomorrow

and a resolution was passed that while the want of unification of the country and the want of the sanction of a properly constituted parliament are, in themselves, sufficient reasons for making the taxes and surcharges unacceptable, the natural calamity in the provinces and the improverished condition of the people render the application of them still more inadvisable. We see no reason why we should change our attitude and we will never acknowledge such burden.

URGE STRONG STAND

"Besides communicating to the Government our last protest and requesting the whole country to join us in opposing them, we have the honor to ask you to maintain your opposition to the last. Should force be employed by the Government, we trust you will be the first to give us your assistance in its resistance.

"We hereby formally request you to communicate this to the Chinese National Federation of Chambers of Commerce and to the various head and branch Chambers in the province and their unanimous action will be appreciated."

The lecture in the Royal Asiatic Society's Hall on Wednesday evening by Mrs. Francis Ayscough was most interesting and enjoyable, and the Society wish to express their very sincere thanks to her for so kindly giving the lecture in aid of their funds.

It is hoped to finish the packing of clothing on Easter Monday, and will all those who are holding work parties please make a point of finishing off their garments so that Mrs. J. Douglas and her helpers can get everything finished on that day? The weather will soon be too warm for the need of padded garments. The Society will still be grateful for money to carry on the work of buying food. This part of the work will be necessary for about two months more when the first crops should be ready if all goes well. The suffering at present is acute.

Tokio, March 17.—The Japanese Red Cross Society is sending five doctors, seven nurses and two clerks to the Chinese famine area from Kobe on March 29. It is likely that these will be the forerunners of a larger staff who will follow later.

The Changing Times

By Arthur West

Women are regular patrons at city's boxing matches—New York headline.

Time was when the beetle browed bruisers,
With calloused and ponderous paws,
Were egged on by rough necks and boozers
As they fractured antagonists' jaws.

Time was when the blood soaked arenas
Were hemmed round with gore-thirsters, tough,
Who yelped like a pack of hyenas
When the panting pork-anders got rough.

Time was when the uppercut stoppers,
And breakers of noses and slats,
Carried on while the vigilant coppers
Stood by with their handcuffs and gats.

Time was when the boys who take poundings,
And toil minus trousers or shirts,
Won fame amidst reeking surroundings
That were hardly a place for the skirts.

But now, just behold, lovely Susan,
And Minnie and Gertrude and Lou,
Sitting up with the maniacs, oozin'
Great gobs of delight at the view.

What slathers of thrills it must give them,
As a bloke steps in front of a swing
That sprawls him unconscious before them,
Or spills half his teeth in the ring.

What a kick they must get out of hooting
Some husky, too slow for the pace,
As the other, relentless, keeps shooting,
A million odd fists at his face.

How sweet it must be, and how saintly,
To razz a poor goof, nearly in,
As he hangs to the ropes, breathing faintly,
With not a flap left in his fin.

Away with fox trotters and crawlers;
Away with the tame family row;
The girls have gone in for the maulers;
A Kayo's the least they'll take now.

Cathay Lace Company Sues Canton Dealer In American Court

Five Chinese composing the Cathay Lace Company of Shanghai filed suit in the United States Court for China yesterday against Mr. N. Hashim, an American citizen of Canton, to recover the sum of Tls. 3,828 said to be due. The five who compose the Cathay Lace Company are Lin Yung-kiang, Nye Dan-cnuen, Koh Tse-ming, Chow Sze-ching and Van Sin-ching.

The Cathay Lace company in its action alleges that it entered into negotiations with the defendant for the sale of certain goods on October 10, 1920 and asserts that on October 13, acting under instructions of the defendant, it purchased exchange in the sum of Gold $10,000 and acting on the defendant's further instructions on October 18 purchased exchange for an additional Gold $10,000.

Of the exchange purchased the plaintiff company alleges that the defendant accepted Gold $5,000 on October 19, but refused to accept the balance of Gold $15,000. The Cathay Lace company, therefore, was obliged, it asserts, to settle the exchange transactions on December 30, 1920 at a loss of Tls. 3,828. It is this sum that it is seeking to recover with interest in the suit.

WHITIN COMPANY OPENING BRANCH TO AID MILL MEN

Office With Technical Staff To Be Established Here For Cotton Men

The Whitin Machine Works, of Whitinsville, Mass., builders of complete equipment of cotton mill machinery, in pursuance with their long established policy in the United States of furnishing efficient service to mills equipped with their machinery, are making plans to open shortly an office of their own in Shanghai with a technical staff, under the direction of Mr. F. R. Pratt, a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, who has had a wide experience in cotton mill construction and power plants, electrical and mechanical. Mr. Pratt will offer his services, as well as those of his organisation, freely in the capacity of consulting engineer to any mills requiring such services.

It is the intention of the Whitin Machine Works, furthermore, to keep an adequate supply of repairs on hand for the accommodation of the mills. The office is to be conducted independent of Gaston, Williams and Wigmore, who, however, will still continue to act as sales agents.

Mr. L. M. Keeler, agent of the Whitin Machine Works, who is travelling through the Far East on a tour of inspection, says that his works are keenly alive to the possibilities of extending their interests in China, and have already made extensive enlargement of their plant in anticipation of the demand that will be made on them.

It may be of interest to add that the manufacture of textile machinery was commenced in Whitinsville in 1831, and the growth of the Whitin Machine Works has been steady and continuous since that time. Today the plant, exclusive of tenements, sheds, etc., comprises nearly 40 acres of working floor space, and, at full capacity, furnishes employment for approximately 3,500 people. It builds a complete line of cotton mill machinery, beginning with picking and ending with weaving. Aside from the usual line of cotton mill machinery it is in a position to furnish machinery for the manufacture of wool, asbestos, flax and other textile fibres.

An innovation in Law School instruction is being tried out by the Yale School of Law in the form of a comprehensive course dealing with the regulation of public utilities. The chief characteristic of this course will be the fact that it is conducted not by theorists, but by members of the bar who have learned at first hand of the problems involved. One of the widely known lawyers who will lecture on the subject of Public Utilities at the Yale Law School is Nathaniel T. Guernsey, head of the Law Department of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company of New York.

Germans Planning Olympics

But Only Those Who Speak German Will Be Allowed To Take Part

A German version of the Greek Olympic games will be staged during the summer of 1922, in the immense Stadium at Berlin, where the international games were to have been held in 1916 had the war not prevented. The Germans, perforce, have gone back to the principle of the first Olympics, to which only those who spoke Greek were admitted, and will only permit German-speaking contestants to take part.

The German athletic authorities do not expect to be invited to compete in the world Olympic contests in 1924, and probably not for several Olympiads to come, and fear difficulty in inducing athletes from former enemy countries to compete under German auspices, so they plan to have their own Olympic games, which will be conducted on the same lines as the world contest. This will serve the double purpose of promoting interest in athletics and in accordance with the pan-German principles, strengthen the union of German peoples who have drifted to various parts of the world. Contestants from former African colonies and South and North America are expected to participate in the initial meet and many will come from neighboring European countries having large German populations, said Carl Diem, secretary of the Federal League for the promotion of athletics.

The Stadium in the suburbs of Berlin, with a seating capacity of nearly 50,000, was erected in 1913 at a cost of $750,000 and contains the latest athletic equipment, including a large swimming pool, and is well fitted for the German Olympics which will be held every four years as long as the Germans are excluded from the world meet.

At present, football games and various other athletic contests are held in this structure erected purposely for the use of athletes from all parts of the world. The Stadium also is used by students of the new college for training physical directors established by the Government in order to insure more competent instruction in athletics. The Federal authorities have outlined an extensive program and are doing all in their power to increase in popularity competitive games which are recognised as a force for the development of the individual initiative. The Government is subsidising athletic clubs, which have a total membership of 400,000, and include competitive sports in the day's work for soldiers of the regular army as well as students in the public schools.

Points In Basketball Play, Under Dispute Here, Are Cleared Up By McCloy

In view of the coming international basketball series, the following interpretation of several rules that have caused arguments here are given. They are given local basketball followers through the courtesy of Mr. C. H. McCloy and will do much to clear up several disputed points.

A letter has recently been received from Oswald Tower, the editor in chief of the Joint Committee on Basketball Rules for America, in reply to some questions sent him by C. H. McCloy of the Young Men's Christian Association. The answers given are as follows:

1.—With reference to the dribble, if a player throws a ball over an opponent's head and then runs around the opponent and catches the ball, the player has begun and completed a legal dribble. If, in running around his opponent, he did not catch the ball, but batted it with one hand, he could legally continue the dribble. After throwing the ball over an opponent's head it may be again batted once in the air without touching the floor for the dribble does not start until he has touched the ball the second time. The ball may not be batted in the air more than once, however, after the dribble has been legally started.

2.—If a player dribbles and then throws for the basket he may not dribble again until the the ball has been touched by another player while out of his possession.

3.—A player catching the ball where the ball strikes the hand and bounces out again and he again catches it before it has been touched by an opponent has completed a dribble. If he then begins a dribble he commits a foul.

In correspondence with Mr. Tower and other members of the committee in America the interpretation brought out on personal contact in its relation to holding is as follows:

Personal contact is a foul when that personal contact interferes with the progress of an opponent. That is, if the man is directly playing the ball any personal contact which does not interfere with the freedom of motion of the opponent, but where the interference of his freedom of motion is entirely caused by the player's hold on the ball, it is not a foul. Personal contact, however, which interferes with the motion of any part of the opponent's body not caused by playing the ball is a foul. It makes no difference whether one hand or two hands, or only one finger, are used.

In further correspondence, blocking it is pointed out can only be committed on a player who has not the ball. Hence a dribbler may be opposed directly from in front where the body is used, that is, the responsibility for avoiding personal contact is on the dribbler, if the guard does not use violence. This does not in the least change the rule about holding which of course is applicable whether one has the ball or not.

It is further pointed out that a guard who dances in front of his opponent, or who constantly keeps his hand on opponent to keep in touch with him, is committing a personal foul for blocking, whether there is personal contact or not.

C. H. McCloy.

Britton Has Fought In 432 Ring Battles In 18 Years

When Jack Britton and Ted Lewis faced each other in the ring at the Garden on February 7 they were engaging in their twentieth battle, as far as available records testify. No other two boxers in the ring have clashed in as many bouts. This in itself made a unique record. Britton is the oldest champion and has a record longer than that possessed by any other boxer active today. He started boxing eighteen years ago and in that time has competed in 432 battles to his own personal knowledge, an average of twenty-four bouts a year. Britton has passed his thirty-seventh brithday, yet he has been defending his laurels against lads who, when Britton first started his career, were being rocked in their cradles.

MAY PLAY HERE FOR DAVIS CUP EARLY IN JUNE

Philippines And Japan To Meet In Preliminary Round Of Tournament

WOULD FOLLOW OLYMPICS

China Contest Committee To Consult With Local Tennis Authorities

Japan and the Philippines will fight in the preliminary round of the Davis Cup lawn tennis championship and the match should be staged in Shanghai some time in June. Dr. John H. Gray, secretary of the China Contest Committee which is in charge of the Far Eastern Olympics, said yesterday that he would get in touch with local tennis authorities and if possible co-operate with them so that the match may be held here.

The Philippines will probably readily respond to the suggestion but Japan may count on Kumagae and other stars now in the United States to represent the Land of Nippon in the match against the Filipinos. Both Japan and the Philippines will send their best men to the Far Eastern championships to get the tennis title and the Davis Cup sanction could be easily secured so that the preliminary round could be held here early in June.

BEAVER BOARD
FOR BETTER WALLS & CEILINGS

Solid Comfort, Hot or Cold

YOU can't expect Beaver Board results unless this trade-mark is on the back of the board you buy.

Within Beaver Board walls and ceilings there's solid comfort. The closely-meshed pure spruce fibre of this good lumber product resists heat, cold and sound better than lath and plaster or other wall building materials.

You don't have to depend on outside labor for building Beaver Board walls and ceilings. Beaver Board is quickly nailed to the studding of new buildings or partitions or directly over old cracked plaster and dingy wall paper.

Beaver Board has endless uses about the farm. It's just the thing to line your work shop and it's even better for the building of a beautiful new room in some waste space in the house.

In a new booklet, "Building More Comfort into the Farm Home," you'll find many suggestions. It's free, together with an actual piece of Beaver Board, if you ask us.

Schumann-Heink Arrives In Yokohama On May 9 For Tour

Mischa Elman, violinist, played to capacity houses at his last two concerts in Tokio.

"About 20 percent of the attendance is made up of foreigners," said Mr. Yamamoto, managing director of the Imperial Theater. Elman is already receiving requests from his friends who desire that he come back to Tokio."

Over 20,000 people have heard the world famous violinist thus far on his Oriental tour, according to Mr. Strok, his manager. His largest house has been at the Imperial Theater but he has had unusual attendances in every city in which he has played.

When Fate and Fire Throw Dice

A TINY spark, a sputtering flame—then a raging furnace of heat and destruction; another town or perhaps a whole city desolated; wiped completely off the earth; victims of the red scourge! When will it stop?
By some weird schedule, yet with remarkable accuracy, fate and fire pick their path—and it's usually across the inflammable roofs of a community. And what is to halt the progress of roof-to-roof fires unless buildings are covered with roofings which resist fire and stop its spread?
Such roofings are of Johns-Manville Asbestos, a mineral which satisfies every roofing requirement as to durability, economy and fire protection.

ASBESTOS ROOFING WILL PROTECT YOUR BUILDINGS

Asbestos, the base of Johns-Manville Asbestos Roofings, is a fire-proof mineral which will not ignite though heaped with blazing brands. It is not harmed by water, oil or ordinary acids and alkalies; and it never needs paint.

Johns-Manville Asbestos roofings are made in many forms so that now every building can have the protection it needs. Johns-Manville Standard and Colorblende Asbestos Shingles for homes; Asbestos Ready-to-lay Roofings for sloping roof decks; Asbestos Built-up Roofing for flat roof surfaces and Corrugated Asbestos Roofing for skeleton frame buildings.
Ask us about the Johns-Manville policy of roof registration which continues their responsibility until you get the service promised.

Tearful Awakening Ends Movie Dream

Two French Girls Walk 200 Miles To Seek Fame; Police Kind

Paris, Jan. 29.—Visions of the success and popularity attained by Mary Pickford and other American stars so turned the heads of Jeanne Tescave and Augustine De Lelis, two fifteen-year-old girls, who are members of respectable Lille families, that they decided to quit their school books and seek film glory. Taking 300 francs from the desk of Jeanne's father, they walked 200 miles to Paris by short stages, while the police all over France were seeking them on the theory that they had been abducted.

But the dreams of the girls had faded when Paris cinema managers refused to believe the assertions of the girls that their beauty would prove more attractive than the imported types and hotel expenses had reduced their funds to a few francs.

They were found at last in tears, standing under a railroad bridge. There they told the story of their wanderings to the police, who did nothing more harsh than to escort them back to their homes on the promise that they would not leave their studies again until they had contracts definitely signed.

This clock is not a passing novelty, but a definite advance in clock making.

14 POINTS AND 4 TO SPARE.

Special Advantages of the Silent Keyless Clock.

1. Extreme simplicity. 2. Reliability. 3. It is practically noiseless. 4. It automatically adjusts itself to irregularities of shelf or mantelpiece. 5. It beats true seconds. 6. It combines the efficiency of a "Grandfather" pendulum with a 4" case. 7. Variations due to atmospheric changes are reduced to a minimum because the centre of gravity is within an eighth of an inch of the centre of motion. 8. The pivots of the compound pendulum, rolling in their curved recess, cause the pendulum to describe a cycloidal arc. 9. It cannot get out of beat. 10. There are no keys to lose. 11. There are no springs to break. 12. The design of the escapement reduces friction to the minimum. 13. The clock itself is its own driving power. 14. It shows at a glance when it needs winding. 15. The driving force is constant. 16. The design lends itself to new varieties of artistic treatment. 17. It requires no oil. 18. An extraordinary reduction of strain on working parts, giving long life.

The Anglo-Russian Trade Agreement

SIGNATURE of the Anglo-Russian Trade Agreement, announced from London in today's cables, creates a brand new international situation. The terms of it, in fact, pose several complex problems and reveal once more the strange and intricate paths through which modern diplomacy is groping its way towards the light.

The first and outstanding fact to be dealt with in connection with this new agreement is that it means full and complete recognition of the Soviet Government by Great Britain. This recognition beyond question seats the ineluctable Lenin and Trotsky more firmly in their droshkies. Other nations will have to follow. They cannot afford to hold aloof while England and Germany wrap up the great future trade of Russia.

So one by one the great nations which Lenin and Trostky have been damning and denouncing as capitalistic and given to holding their peoples in serfdom, will accord recognition to the new form of government that is in process of evolvement in Russia. And that new form of government will by easy stages come to look very much like the forms of government that already exist all over the world. Lenin and Trotsky have been forced to yield so many points that the government they now rule no more resembles the original Bolshevist program than it does the old Tsarist government.

Open commercial intercourse with other nations will rapidly fine down the rest of the program. And meanwhile the Bolshevists of Britain, Germany, France, Italy and Spain will no longer find it profitable to threaten their governments with Bolshevism. The free run of trade between Russia and the other nations will bring them to a fair basis of competition eventually, a levelling process, and the world will stand a chance of working back to a productive and prosperous era. With the Tsar and the Kaiser removed, the governments in the last analysis will look alike and function more or less along identical lines. More education, more production and more trade will gradually heal the open, bleeding wounds of today.

That, at least, would seem to be the commonsense mental approach to a new and complicated situation. To accept things as they are and let them work themselves out, meanwhile contributing what of brains and brawn we have left, towards making them work out for the benefit of the well known and foolish human race—that would seem to be the commonsense thing to do.

The difficulty here encountered lies in the paucity of commonsense. We have lost the vision that inspired the soldiers who fought and won the war. What did they fight for, anyway? Have we got it, or are we in a fair way of getting it?

How, for instance, is France going to face and analyze this new agreement between England and Russia. The terms of the agreement are of vital concern to France. England apparently has consented to the wiping out of the large debt owed to her by the Soviet and pre-Soviet government. This may or may not mean also the old Tsarist government, which, during the first years of the war, contracted large obligations in England. At any rate it covers the considerable debt which was run up by the Kerensky government.

Russia's debt to France, dating from before the war, and largely increased since, is so huge that France cannot contemplate its loss with complacency. Indeed, considering the vast resources of Russia and her own financial impoverishment, she cannot contemplate it at all.

But England, acting through Lloyd George, has just taken a firm stand alongside France in the matter of enforcing the reparations penalties against Germany. Lloyd George and Briand probably made a trade.

Great Britain gains trade with Russia and immunity from Bolshevist propaganda in India and Afghanistan. Lenin and Trotsky gain recognition, the lifting of the blockade, freedom of the seas for their ships, which largely affects the operations of the Russian Volunteer Fleet out here and in the Black Sea, and other privileges and immunities. Trade, banking, credit and all financial operations between the two countries, are fully re-established. A considerable debt to Britain is cancelled, or at least put to one side for the present.

It remains for France to make her own deal with Russia. In the present state of the world, and especially considering the impossibility of her waging war on Russia now, owing to the commitments in Germany and the Anglo-Russia Trade Agreement, it would seem that the only course left open to her is that of reaching an agreement with the Moscow Government.

Thus, on the whole, the probabilities are that the new agreement between Britain and Russia, is a long step towards world peace and world restoration, however bitterly the French may view it at the moment.

Awaiting Instructions

Having occasion to send off a commercial representative in a hurry, a business man was obliged to employ the services of a seventeen-year-old youth, whom he thus instructed:

"You will set off at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning and will arrive at your destination shortly before 9. Have a cup of tea at the railway station and then proceed to interview Mr. S—. But remember to telegraph me at the first difficulty."

The next morning he received this wire:

"There is no milk at the station, so I am unable to put any in my cup of tea. What must I do?"

ANCIENT AND MODERN

The damosels of long ago
Were ever nice when they said "No."
They hinted in their honied way
At other flowers as sweet as they,
And proffered to the blighted swain
A sister's love to suage his pain.
But things have changed in this respect
And modern maids, when they reject,
Just give their heads the tiniest toss,
And tersely snap, "Abso. Imposs."

UNEMPLOYMENT CURES

(By M. O. Sale in London opinion, with acknowledgments to our wiseacres.)

Mr. Miker, the popular Labor Leader:

The remedy for unemployment lies in easing the load of toil endured by the wage slaves of this country. If you want a practical suggestion, let every bricklayer be assisted by a timekeeper as well as by a bricklayer's laborer, and every bricklayer's laborer by a bricklayer's laborer's timekeeper. A hundred thousand men could be absorbed into industry at once in this very simple way.

Mr. Limpett, the Eminent Bureaucrat:

The simplest remedy, in my opinion, would be a vast extension of the Civil Service. It is well known that more staff creates more work—and it is work we want. If you had double the number of officials employed in every Government Department, it is obvious that double as many letters would be written, and double as many chits passed to you, please. Manufacturers of high-class stationery would do improved trade.

Mr. Pijaw, the Prohibition Lecturer:

Prohibition is the thing to kill unemployment in this country. For every man thrown out of work in the breweries and distilleries six men are wanted as secret service detectives, spies, and touts, to enforce the law on the poor of the country, while thousands more find ready openings in the cocaine and morphia business.

Mr. Bludski, the Bolshevik:

Trade with Russia is the panacea. Bloated manufacturers should be compelled to send their goods there. The Russian proletariat wants the goods. The English proletariat wants the wages for making those goods. The question of payment does not arise. The capitalist class must stand the loss.

HINTS TO HUSBANDS

"All women love admiration, some more than others, but we all like it, and if our husbands did not give it to us we would seek it elsewhere. We love with our ears much more than a man thinks or we ourselves realise, for it is the unimportant (but very important to the woman) little phrases such as:

'That hat does suit you,' or 'You do look sweet today,' etc., that are always pleasant hearing for the woman, and the man is a fool who does not say them; for strangely enough they do it before they are married, but leave it off after, and only tell her when a hat doesn't suit her, etc! I was once asked by a man, about to be married, to give him some advice on the subject. I replied: 'I could give you reams, but no doubt to no purpose; but there is one thing you need never forget, and that is to tell your wife you love her. If you don't some other man will.' He stared at me in amazement at first, but soon saw my point, when I explained how a woman is never tired of a man telling her he loves her, for that is one of the things a woman seldom takes for granted."—From "Some" Women, by One of Them.

JUST LIKE GILBERT

"The late Sir William Gilbert was perhaps the most arbitrary stage producer ever known. He coached and drilled his company to the smallest detail; yet when he felt that the part he had created was in good hands he stood aside and let the genius of the actor have its way. There is a story told of the late W. H. Kendal. Gilbert had been particularly worrying to him during a rehearsal, and at last Kendal ventured on a remonstrance. 'You don't keep stopping my wife,' he said to Gilbert. 'Your wife's an acter,' was the emphatic reply."—Practical Hints on Training for the Stage, by Agnes Platt.

Declares Neither American Nor Japanese Policies In China Are Sound

BY DR. S. WASHIO

Dr. Shogoro Washio, writing in the current number of the Gaiko Jiho (Diplomatic Review), argues Americans will find, as they continue to develop their interests in China, that they cannot keep economic interests separate from political power; further, they will discover that the business system which has grown up in the United States, based on scarcity of labor and unlimited resources, is quite as unsuited to China as Japan's policy of backing military leaders. China, says the writer enigmatically, is the land of the future. He thinks the Russian zemstvo system or the Danish guild system more likely to prevail in China than America's system of big organisation.

"The capitalism of the United States, unlike that of Japan and of other countries, has not been tested by the traditional feudal system in its course of development. It is an institution imported from a strange land and grown on an uninhabited soil, where it expanded into an established economic system before the population of the country had reached any considerable number. That is why capitalism in the United States from the beginning was equipped with political power, a condition peculiar to the United States, and appropriately termed by President Wilson 'government by financiers and manufacturers.' The present development of capitalism in America is due to its political power. According to the American notion of unification, the capitalistic organisation of society means a politically unified government and both are inseparably united.

CAPITALISM IN CHINA

"It is doubtful whether such a capitalistic system as is seen in the United States will be successful in a country with a different social and political back-ground. We can not expect that American capitalism would prove efficient in a country like China where constant struggles for power are waged among military chieftains, while on the other hand the conservative businessmen, who are utterly indifferent to political agitation, are greedily safeguarding their guild system. Even if Americans should apply their capitalism in such large industries as railways or mining we are far from believing in the successful result of their efforts. The unification of China by a partial development of the country, which is all that foreign investment can attain, is no more hopeful than the efforts to unify the country by assisting militarist politicians. A mere comparison of the facilities with which the Americans cultivated an uninhabited continent by means of immigrant labor and the difficulties which they must face in exploiting the hidden resources of China, a nest of confused conventions and old customs, in the presence of other Powers, would be enough to discourage the most conceited. The prospects of the future policy of the United States towards China do not appear bright when we take account of the real extent of the economic assistance of the Americans which is very small in comparison with their proclaimed aims.

IF PIONEERS WERE HERE

"We can not expect that American businessmen who have not stayed in China more than three months should emerge with success from the competition which is going on among Japanese, Englishmen, Chinese and Germans. The old Puritan colonists who concentrated their undivided efforts on opening up the United States, might succeed in China, but free competition in China by present-day Americans is handicapped by their peculiar economic views. The Americans at present are remarkable for their unrivalled power of organisation and exploitation on a grand scale. But exploitation on a grand scale needs not only capital but political power. To utilize capital as the most powerful weapon of exploitation is to transform it into political power. In a community like the United States where capital is closely connected with political power, efficiency can be attained by organised efforts of business men, but the unrivalled efficiency of American businessmen will be exposed to a severe test in a country where they are not backed by political power and are exposed to unlimited competition.

POLITICAL POWER

"A connection with political power is indispensable for the trial of economic exploitation in China which the Americans propose, and their efforts to acquire political power in China are seen in the Consortium. In order to maintain a part of the political power which they succeeded in acquiring from the Chinese Government they have to mix themselves up with Chinese politics. It is obvious that the intention of the Americans to extend their economic influence in China while evading political interference will in a long run inextricably compromise them in Chinese politics to the advantage of Chinese politicians. They will make capital out of the economic assistance of the Americans just as they did out of the military assistance of Japan and at the cessation of that assistance they will launch an anti-American campaign. The fate of Japan's policy is awaiting the policy of the United States.

"At present although the Chinese policy of the United States apparently aims at exclusively economic purposes in consideration of the failure of Japan, it is really in close contact with politics in China. As a result the general public in China may be compelled to resort to anti-Americanism, against which the United States will have to enter on a policy of drastic Imperialism, though I believe that the Americans will realise in time that their economic power is inapplicable to such a country as China.

AMERICAN BUSINESS

"The American system of business not only cannot be successfully applied in China unless it is backed by political power but it does not meet the needs of the general Chinese. So far, the development of commerce in America is no more than the progress of a mechanical organisation and its sole motive is the economy of labor, which is the necessary condition of the economic development of an uncultivated land. As for China, where the economy of labor is not needed, the motive of economic evolution must necessarily be different. Except for industries which need machinery or special raw materials the United States can be of no service to the development of Chinese commerce and industry. The future development of China will be more naturally effected by imitating the Danish guild system or Zemstvo system of old Russia, which are better adapted for the Chinese with their traditional system of guild organisation.

"The American policy of economic unification of China will be no more effectual for the development of China than the Japanese policy of militarist unification of China. Both the Americans who believe too much in the militaristic policy of Japan and the Japanese who have too much confidence in the economic policy of Americans are mistaken. An American pointed out with a sneer the fact that the Chinese Government bought some machines from a New York company with the money borrowed from Japan, but according to a Chinese politician, both the Japanese and the Americans who invest money in China are only accumulating wealth in China for the use of the Chinese. The unification of China can neither be effected by the Japanese policy or the American policy; the true means lie in another direction. China is a country of the future."

The Spice Of Life

Lessons in Railroading.—Picking her way daintily through the locomotive plant, a young woman visitor viewed the huge operations with awe. Finally, she turned to a young man who was showing her through, and asked:

"What is that big thing over there?"

"That's a locomotive-boiler," he replied. She puckered her brows.

"And what do they boil locomotives for "

"To make the locomotive tender," and the young man from the office never smiled.—The Overhere Digest (Minneapolis.)

'And The Rain Came Not'

(A poem written by Viola Sauvage Owens in the New York Times in behalf of the U. S. Fund for Famine Relief in China).

Sleep, little man-child; pale little Moon-flower, sleep.
Empty the rice-bowl; the dust is deep on the wine-cup.
So sleep, bright Dew of the Morning.

At the first of each moon have I prayed at the Temple of Buddha;
Have wafted my prayers to the Temple of Ten Thousand Buddhas;
Offering jewels of jade, and the purple smoke of the incense.
But the rain came not, and the rice grew black in the furrow.
With the flush of the dawn have I bowed before the tablets of my ancestors,
Sharing my meager store.
But the rain came not, and the young wheat died and the millet.
Sought I then in my anguish the King of the Dragons, who dwells in the water;
Dwells in his cave, deep, deep in the silent water.
Gayly I plucked at my lute, and sang, though my heart was heavy;
And tossed in my arms that fair sweet blossom, thy sister.
Fairer she was than the first frail bud of the lotus.
But the rain came not. And forth from the depths of the cavern
Angry ripples arose and lashed at my feet in fury.
Madness seized me,
And into the swirling waters I cast her, my jewel, my flower;
That so her measure of rice should sustain thee, wise little man-child.

And the rain came not.
The sky was a bowl of brass and brass the glittering day.
Suddenly fell the night.
The reeling stars swooned in the sullen river.
Wanly the young moon rose, dipping her face in the river.
Six times the young moon rose, dipping her face in the river.
Six times the round moon waned, and chill grew the river.
Fluttered the first white feathers of snow. The earth grew cold and colder;
Cold as the brow of that fair sweet blossom, thy sister;
Cold as the clutch of the fear that wakes in my bosom.

So sleep, little man-child; pale little Moon-flower, sleep.
Empty the rice-bowl; the dust is deep on the wine-cup.

In the dew of the dawn I will pray to the foreign Father,
The Great White God that dwells in the Temple of Heaven;
Bearing as gifts these empty hands and the broken prayers of a mother.
Yet, sleep, little Moon-flower, sleep. It is far to the harvest.
And far to the Great White God that dwells in the Heavens;
And far, oh, far, to His Temple behind the stars.
So sleep, little man-child; wan little Moon-flower, sleep.
Wide is the river, and kind.

THE CARDINAL VIRTUES

According to the Chinese, Jade is the prototype of all gems, and unites in itself the five cardinal virtues.

Green Jade, of late years particularly, has enjoyed a great vogue in London, Paris, and New York, its charm being generally recognised.

Likewise, the cardinal virtues of a really high-grade Cigarette are united in our brand, which we call

"Green Jade" Cigarettes

As manufactured in London, from the finest Carolina Leaf procurable, they make an irresistible appeal to all connoisseurs of Virginia tobacco.

By virtue of trial, you will note their virtue.

Author Of 'Only In The Way' Found Homeless At 87

At the prime of his career as a musician and writer of popular songs, Carl Raymond wrote a song entitled, "Only in the Way." Those who are old enough will remember that it was about an old man who had outlived his usefulness.

Raymond little thought then that the song foretold what has happened to him in his old age.

Now eighty-seven years old, he was found recently by the Chicago police after having been without food for three days. His fortune gone, and even deserted by a stray cat that he had adopted, he now waits for the end.

He was a violinist in the Theodore Thomas Orchestra years ago and was an author of another popular song, "Just One Girl," that is sure to be remembered by some of the older folks because it swept the country in its day just as "Margie" and "Dardanella" have in the present day.

"Just one girl, only just one girl:
There may be others I know, but they're not my pearl;
Sun or rain, she is just the same
I'll be happy forever with just one girl,"

That's the way it went. Nothing very deep, but perhaps it will bring more clear to the memory of older people who Raymond is.

He is also a veteran of the Mexican and Civil wars.

At the station, greatly heartened by the meal that kindly policemen had provided for him, he told his story.

"Everybody's been darn fine to me," he said, "I always thought there was no place in the world for an old man, but these policemen have shown me the world's heart is open.

"One time things were different. When I was with the Thomas, I could play any instrument from the bells to the French horn. All excepting the jew's sharp, that is. And if there was any call for it, I reckon I could have played it, too.

"When I was with the Thomas, I saved money. I had plenty laid by. As much as $20,000. And my own home and two horses and servants. Then the fire came along and I was wiped out.

"I could have gone to the infirmary, but I didn't want to give up. It's like the old song I wrote, "Only in the Way.' I didn't want to be like that so I went out in the world again.

"It's been a funny life for me at that. I went through the Mexican War with Scott, and fought with Sixth Massachusetts from the time we were stoned by the mob in Baltimore through Shiloh, Gettysburg and Antictam. Never a scratch. And then one day I went out to Camp Grant to see the boys out loose with these new rifles they have. And a stray shot hit me in the leg. I got over that, though.

"Since then I've been sort of sleeping round. I had my old musket, a cornet and a cat. I lost the musket somewhere and the cornet, too. The cat just kind of went away. That's the way with cats. They stay with you as long as you feed them and no longer.

"Last place I was sleeping was in the basement of St. Mary's Church over on Wabash Avenue. I decided to move after I got here. I couldn't move after I got here. Couldn't move after I moved. That's a good one, hey?"

And Carl Raymond, one time first violin for the Theodore Thomas Orchestra, greatest orchestra of the Middle West in its day, and writer of popular songs, went back to nap again.

Familiar Scenes :-: By S.E. Kiser

I met a little city boy, whose face was pale and thin.
"How sad," I said, "that you must live where high walls shut you in!
You never see a chipmunk stray along a crooked fence,
You never watch a lamb at play in fearless innocence!
Poor little boy, you never see gay colts kick up their heels,
Or little piggies eagerly partaking of their meals.

"Dear little boy," I said, "I wish that I could take you far
To those wide spaces where the fields and pleasant woodlands are!
You never saw a plowman plow or watched him pause at rest;
You have no means of knowing how a robin builds her nest.
You never see the trees in bloom nor watch the petals blow
Where no forbidding buildings loom, no mad mobs come and go.

"Poor little boy, how much you miss! You have no chance at all
To see the wonder that is in a foamy waterfall.
You never saw a farmer try to wean a stubborn calf;
One side of life you see, but I have seen the other half.
You have no chance to gaze upon herds winding o'er the lea;
The rosy wonder of the dawn you have no chance to see!"

The little city boy whose face was pale and thin replied:
"How do you git that way, old man? Roll on your other side!
I've watched the farmer pitching out his wads of hay and straw;
There ain't a thing you've spoke about that I have never saw—
The chipmunk and the stream that flows from some far, snowy peak—
I see them at the movie shows about three times a week."

Are You Sent To School?

By Dr. Wm. A. McKeever

(Professor Of The University Of Kansas And An Authority On Child Training

Is your boy going to school or sent?

Where is the compelling force, within his mind or yours?

Who assumes the burden of getting his lessons, he or you?

The time will come when we shall have to discontinue shoving our children off to school simply because it is "the proper thing to do." For a quarter of a century I have stood in the very midst of the educational movement, attempting all along to weigh it, measure it and consider its inner and outer motives. It seems to me that the larger the number we put through the courses the smaller the number we educate.

"Put through," that is the heart of the trouble. Education is a tradition, a custom we parents try to carry out in the lives of our young, rather than a desire. The lower grades, the high school, the college and the big university—I am visiting widely among them all and I find the same weak educational "morale" among all these grades. The learners no longer "go" to school; they are sent. It seems that we parents and educators shall ere long be compelled to tear the entire school system to pieces and build it over.

Today I saw two small girls hurry away from the school room to clean up their room for an expected caller. Yesterday I saw a ten-year-old rush from his recitation in English to an eager hour with his wireless. The day before I met six high school youths in a garage hid away from their teachers and in a red-hot discussion about boy banditry and police government. Previously to that I watched a squad of lazy college students puffing like moguls in the performance of a lot of heavy work preparatory to their dance.

Study as little as you can, cut as often as you can, cheat whenever you can, get through as easy as you can—that is the general sentiment which I find creeping out of the attitude and conduct of students everywhere. I have tried to overlook the fault, but it is too glaring. The highest percentage of real studentship I have seen anywhere during the past year was in a common business college of 300 young men and women. Here I found motive. Nearly every one leaning on himself or trying to get somewhere through his own effort.

So our old ideal of the student's getting through, finishing a standard course and receiving a standard degree never seemed so thin and vague. On the other hand, I believe that education consists in learning to do something worth while which one desires to do. Interest, desire and motive are everything. A high-sounding course of study may mean little or nothing. It is not a matter of concern that our pupils learn so little and know so little, but that they care so little.

We must seek a motive. We must follow them to some point of desire or interest and there help them work out a course of study that fits their motive. Education and self realisation must coalesce. Education must tend toward self redemption. The learner must be conscious of pulling himself up through desire to the final place of transformation and realisation of his whole being. Not being sent or shoved along through a standard "required course," but a slow exaltation of the body, mind and spirit of the learner; that some day will become the goal of schooling and the fixed standard fetish will fade away before the radiant soul of the awakened child.

5,300 Suicides In Hungary Mark Year's High Record

Budapest, Jan. 20.—Thirty-two hundred women and 2,100 men committed suicide in Hungary during 1920, police reports for the year show. In additon, there were more than 10,000 unsuccessful attempts at suicide. The tremendous increase is causing much worry, inasmuch as the pre-war figures were from 50 to 60 suicides yearly. The situation is attributed to the gradual deterioration in living conditions and the fact that the war had the effect of making human life much cheaper.

Government, society and church circles, realising the grave danger to the country, have begun a campaign against self-destruction. Sermons on the subject are being preached in all the churches and a special police force has been organised to keep strict watch and prevent suicides.

Soldier, Far Off, Finds 'Unforgettable Girl'

In Tasmania But He Couldn't Forget Fair Birmingham Maid

London, Jan. 29.—Not knowing how else to call her, he named her the "Unforgettable Girl" and addressed a message to her from far away Tasmania to Birmingham, trusting that love would find a way. Reads like a romance, you say. Well, it is! And a true one that spun itself without the whimsical art of a Barrie to guide it.

It began back in 1918. He was an ex-sergeant who had won the D. C. M. and the M. M. He was on a train that made a short stop at Birmingham. There he saw the girl—the Unforgettable Girl. She had come to the station to see some friends off. War conditions still prevailed.

It was perfectly proper, therefore, for a girl to enter into conversation with a soldier who looked a bit down-hearted. He became sentimental and asked for a lock of her hair. She laughed. He was a soldier. He had served his country well. What harm would there be in humoring him to this extent? The train pulled out without either having learned the other's name.

One day the Chief Constable at Birmingham received a letter from the ex-sergeant in Tasmania asking him to hunt the "Unforgettable Girl" for him and stating frankly that he had fallen in love with her. It was a big order, but the Chief Constable did his part. He gave the letter to the Daily Mail, which published it. The girl read it and suddenly discovered that there also was an "Unforgettable Man" in the World. There was an exchange of photographs, and the girl is now preparing to start for distant Tasmania.
